EXECUTIVE SYNOPSIS

DOSSIER NOTES

In preparing this background report, we undertook an examination of all readily available and relevant electronic and online records, several hundred Nexis and news articles, dozens of active and archived web pages, and several dozen public records from Nexis and the resources of various federal, state, and municipal government offices. The results of our analysis are contained below.

Typographical Note: There are a number of articles quoted in this report that contain typographical errors. These are from the original text of the article and have not been corrected when being quoted directly.

MAIN VULNERABILITIES

Personal And Professional Foibles

Osman's family business, Shamrock Park Apartments, attempted to evict a tenant during the Covid-19 pandemic. Despite receiving default judgment and having a writ of execution issued, the judgment was halted due to the eviction moratorium. To that effect, Shamrock Park Apartments has filed hundreds of eviction complaints in Johnson County, Kansas, dating back to the 1980s. Osman's name does not appear on any company documents, so it is difficult to discern when exactly he became involved in the family business; however, on his 2021 Statement of Substantial Interests, Osman declared partial ownership of the business. Osman has personally pursued others for failing to meet financial obligations in a timely manner as well. On at least one occasion, Osman filed a small claims complaint; however, this complaint was later dismissed after the defendant most likely paid the outstanding debt. Further, as recently as July 2020, Shamrock Park Apartments has faced a premises liability complaint. This complaint was later dismissed after the parties most likely agreed to settle.

Liberal Agenda

Osman used social media to oppose efforts to restrict the teaching of critical race theory (CRT) and posted a photograph of himself at a rally for 'Teach The Truth Action' – an organization that opposes efforts to ban the teaching of critical race theory in schools and claims such efforts are "based on misguided fears." Included in the photos Osman posted was a speaker wearing shirt featuring the phrase 'Black Lives Matter At School'. In February 2022, Osman criticized legislation that established the "Parental Bill of Rights and Academic Transparency Act".

Osman has also indicated anti-second amendment sentiments. Specifically, Osman praised the efforts of an activist with the anti-gun organization 'Everytown for Gun Safety' and has noted he "support[s] common sense gun laws..."

Throughout the Covid-19 pandemic, Osman has used social media to promote the notion that any questioning of the government's response to Covid was "just blatant pandering to the most extreme part of the Republican party." Osman appears to be supportive of employer vaccine mandates at the federal level and voted against Kansas legislation seeking to provide employee vaccine mandate exemptions. Additionally, Osman appears to be a passionate supporter of masking. On broader healthcare policy, Osman has consistently supported efforts to expand Medicaid and recently voted for a state amendment to expand Medicaid.

In March 2022, Osman voted against legislation that sought to prohibit any municipality from preventing the enforcement of federal immigration laws – otherwise known as a sanctuary city. In February 2022, Osman voted against a bill to propose a constitutional amendment requiring that a sheriff be elected in each county in Kansas. Additionally, Osman supports providing taxpayer funded food stamps to certain ex-felons, supports eliminating civil asset forfeiture, and opposes efforts to curb underage drinking.

On issues of education and the public school system, Osman has indicated he opposes school choice initiatives yet supports increasing funding for measures such as universal pre-kindergarten. Osman has been previously endorsed by the National Education Association (NEA), the nation’s most powerful teachers’ union.

Osman has opposed efforts to reform and safeguard elections in Kansas. In February 2022, Osman touted that he voted for a legislative measure to kill HB 2585 “requiring advance voting ballots be returned by 7 pm on Election Day” and suggesting “this bill was unnecessary and harmful to Kansans who want a free and fair election.” Additionally, Osman was implicitly critical of using Johnson County resources to investigate the 2020 and 2021 elections.

Osman has demonstrated support for a more restrictive regulatory regime on several issues including affordable housing, labor, plastic containers, religious activities, bounce houses, and package delivery. Also, Osman has noted his support for measures to address the “threat” of climate change.

Questionable Leadership

Osman, who had served on the Hickman Mills School Board since 2011, was a member of the school board when a scathing audit was released in 2014 by the state auditor. The audit lambasted the school board for poor oversight and controls, among several other issues. More specifically, the audit found that the school board “did not follow its policies or state law when selecting a new superintendent” (a process that took place during Osman’s tenure) and had “not been providing adequate oversight.” Meanwhile, the audit found the school district as a whole was still facing financial difficulties, had failed to solicit proposals for auditing and necessary legal services, and had “not always complied with the sunshine law and held numerous improper close meetings.” The Kansas City Star Editorial Board described the Hickman Mill school district as having “[slipped] out of control.”

Years following the audit, Osman faced more turbulence when his decision to move out of the state resulted in his resignation. In September 2016, Jackson County (MO) prosecutors were known to be reviewing a complaint that Osman was violating state statute because he no longer lived in the Hickman Mills School District. Osman’s residency issue troubled some other members of the school board and ultimately led to Osman’s resignation. Kansas City Star columnist Mary Sanchez wrote: “Osman had moved into Kansas but wanted to remain on the board. The south Kansas City community rightfully backlashed at the suggestion, prompting his resignation.”

Despite currently claiming to have lived in Kansas “almost my entire life”, a review of the historical Hickman Mills School Board website reveals that Osman once wrote: “my wife and I have made our home in the Hickman Mills for almost a decade. We’re proud to call South Kansas City our home.”

Finally, it should be noted that Osman has occasionally promoted questionable humor on social media. In 2009, Osman used the term “twat” to describe his first Twitter post. In 2012, Osman wrote that “slave labor is the height of humor.” Osman also appears to enjoy traditional ‘bathroom humor.’

BANKRUPTCIES, JUDGMENTS, & LIENS RECORDS

Dan Osman, both personally and through his business, has been involved in a variety of financial-related lawsuits.

Shamrock Park Apartments, the Osman-owned family business, has filed hundreds of lawsuits against others dating back to the 1980s. In October 2020, Shamrock Park Apartments attempted to evict a tenant early on during the Covid-19 pandemic. Despite receiving default judgment have having a writ of execution issued in October 2020, the eviction was halted due to the moratorium on evictions. Osman’s name does not appear on any company documents, so it is difficult to discern when exactly he became involved in the family business; however, on his 2021 Statement of Substantial Interests, Osman declared partial ownership of the business.

Personally, in January 2007, Osman filed a small claims complaint against Frank Smith III. In April 2007, Osman dismissed the complaint after the outstanding debt was most likely paid.

OSMAN’S PERSONAL AND PROFESSIONAL ISSUES

Foremost among his professional issues is that Shamrock Park Apartments, his family business, attempted to evict a tenant during the Covid-19 pandemic. Despite receiving default judgment and having a writ of execution issued, the judgment was halted due to the eviction moratorium. To that effect, Shamrock Park Apartments has filed hundreds of eviction complaints in Johnson County, Kansas, dating back to the 1980’s. Osman’s name does not appear on any company documents, so it is difficult to discern when exactly he became involved in the family business; however, on his 2021 Statement of Substantial Interests, Osman declared partial ownership of the business. Osman has personally pursued others for failing to meet financial obligations in a timely manner as well. On at least one occasion, Osman has filed a small claims complaint; however, his complaint was later dismissed after the defendant most likely paid the outstanding debt. Further, as recently as July 2020, Shamrock Park Apartments has faced a premises liability complaint. This complaint was later dismissed after the parties most likely agreed to settle.

OSMAN'S LIBERAL AGENDA

Osman used social media to oppose efforts to restrict the teaching of critical race theory (CRT) and post a photograph of himself at a rally for 'Teach The Truth Action' – an organization that opposes efforts to ban the teaching of critical race theory in schools and claims such efforts are "based on misguided fears." Included in the photos Osman posted was a speaker wearing shirt featuring the phrase 'Black Lives Matter At School'. In February 2022, Osman criticized legislation that established the "Parental Bill of Rights and Academic Transparency Act".

Osman has also indicated anti-second amendment sentiments. Specifically, Osman praised the efforts of an activist with the anti-gun organization 'Everytown for Gun Safety' and has noted he "support[s] common sense gun laws..."

Throughout the Covid-19 pandemic, Osman has used social media to promote the notion that any questioning of the government's response to Covid was "just blatant pandering to the most extreme part of the Republican party." Osman appears to be supportive of employer vaccine mandates at the federal level and voted against Kansas legislation seeking to provide employee vaccine mandate exemptions. Additionally, Osman appears to be a passionate supporter of masking. On broader healthcare policy, Osman has consistently supported efforts to expand Medicaid and recently voted for a state amendment to expand Medicaid.

In March 2022, Osman voted against legislation that sought to prohibit any municipality from preventing the enforcement of federal immigration laws" – otherwise known as a sanctuary city. In February 2022, Osman voted against a bill to propose a constitutional amendment requiring that a sheriff be elected in each county in Kansas. Additionally, Osman supports providing taxpayer funded food stamps to certain ex-felons, supports eliminating civil asset forfeiture, opposes efforts to curb underage drinking.

On issues of education and the public school system, Osman has indicated he opposes school choice initiatives yet supports increasing funding for measures such as universal pre-kindergarten. Perhaps most notably, Osman has been previously endorsed by the National Education Association (NEA), the nation's most powerful teachers' union.

Predictably, Osman has opposed efforts to reform and safeguard elections in Kansas. Specifically, in February 2022, Osman touted that he voted for a legislative measure to kill HB 2585 "requiring advance voting ballots be returned by 7 pm on Election Day" and suggesting "this bill was unnecessary and harmful to Kansans who want a free and fair election." Additionally, Osman was implicitly critical of using Johnson County resources to investigate the 2020 and 2021 elections.

On regulatory matters, Osman has demonstrated support for a more restrictive regulatory regime on several issues including affordable housing, labor, plastic containers, religious activities, bounce houses, and package delivery. Also, Osman has noted his support for measures to address the "threat" of climate change.

In February 2022, Osman Criticized HB 2662, Which Established The “Parental Bill Of Rights And Academic Transparency Act” – An Effort To Block The Teaching Of Critical Race Theory. “Public schools can’t catch a break. The so-called Frankenstein Education Bill, blocked from passage last year by a bipartisan coalition, is back with a vengeance. The conservative Heritage Foundation is spearheading a national reckoning over public education prompted by the latest buzzword issue: critical race theory. The House K-12 Budget Committee pushed through HB 2662, which establishes the “Parental Bill of Rights and Academic Transparency Act.” The bill also creates a misdemeanor offense to “deter exposure of students to obscene materials in schools.” I’ve heard from dozens teachers across the state and right here in both Blue Valley and Shawnee Mission. It is clear that teachers are at a breaking point. If we continue down a path of punishing teachers for doing their jobs and removing the funding necessary for districts to thrive, we will very quickly see a mass exodus. We can turn this ship around now, and quickly, or we can ignore it and it will be a slow and painful mess to turn it around later.” (E-Mail, Dan Osman, 2/27/22)

And that confusion can cost your business. Failure to meet affirmative action requirements on your project may lead to removal (debarment) from the project itself. In some cases liquidated damages can be 30% of the total contract value! No business can afford that and no one should have to worry about a threat like that derailing their project ... or the embarrassing bad press that comes along with it. Osman Consulting is committed to ensuring that this never happens. Not only will I explain what your obligations are through every step of the plan, but I will work with you, your general contractor, and all its subcontractors to make sure everyone understands and complies with the obligations of the TIF Affirmative Action policy. In February 2022, Osman Was Reported To Be Among The Legislators Of The House Committee On Corrections And Juvenile Justice To Amend Kansas Law And Remove A Phrase Effectively Criminalizing Same-Sex Sodomy

In February 2022, Osman Was Reported To Be Among The Legislators Of The House Committee On Corrections And Juvenile Justice To Amend Kansas Law And Remove A Phrase Effectively Criminalizing Same-Sex Sodomy Between Consenting Adults. “That’s right. State law defines<sup>[2]</sup> several categories of criminal sodomy, including ‘Sodomy between persons who are 16 or more years of age and members of the same sex.’ It’s a misdemeanor punishable by up to six months<sup>[3]</sup> in prison. Are you gay? Have you every had intimate relations with another gay person in Kansas? Congratulations! You’re a criminal. These laws once flourished throughout the United States, and they were a tool of discrimination against LBGQTQ people. In Kansas, folks were prosecuted under these laws for no other reason than being themselves. Specifically, sex between same-gendered adults would be a misdemeanor criminal offense punishable by up to six months in prison. In a case called Lawrence v. Texas, the U.S. Supreme Court put an end to this nonsense. But despite calls to remove a flagrantly unconstitutional law from the books, former Gov. Sam Brownback didn’t recommend doing so<sup>[4]</sup> in 2012 when his administration highlighted 51 measures for repeal. Or as the New York Times delicately put it: ‘Mr. Brownback, who is a vocal opponent of same-sex marriage on religious grounds, declined to comment, and his spokeswoman would not say whether he would support repealing the law against same-sex sodomy, a misdemeanor that officially carries a prison sentence of up to six months.’ In other words, homophobia ruled the day. <https://kansasreflector.com/wp-content/uploads/2021/02/P2231541.jpg> Tom Witt, executive director of Equality Kansas, told KCUR that a Kansas same-sex criminal sodomy law has been used to discriminate against gay people. (Sherman Smith/Kansas Reflector) A decade has passed since then, with the high court legalizing same-sex marriage<sup>[5]</sup> in 2015. Kansas now has multiple<sup>[6]</sup>, open<sup>[7]</sup> LGBTQ legislators. Surely now, after all the water passed under the bridge, it's time to show gay Kansans that they belong? Maybe. Maybe not. A recent story[8] from KCUR in Kansas City lays out the current state of affairs. Rep. John Carmichael, D-Wichita, has introduced a simple bill, HB 2009[9], that deletes the phrase I quoted above. It's unfortunately languishing in a committee packed with other important bills. Wrote KCUR's Blaise Mesa: 'The Kansas Bureau of Investigation says nobody has been convicted of same-sex criminal sodomy for at least five years. Still, Thomas Witt, executive director of Equality Kansas, said the provision has been used to discriminate against LGBTQ people even if they weren't convicted. 'Witt said Kansans were arrested for same-sex relations even after the Supreme Court's ruling, but the last time he heard that happened was in 2013.' Can you believe that? No, really, can you believe that? An unenforceable, unconstitutional Kansas law has been deployed to harass your fellow Kansans. Authorities did so as recently as nine years ago, a full decade after Lawrence v. Texas. Repealing this bigoted law can't come soon enough. I decided to check with members of the House Committee on Corrections and Juvenile Justice[10] to see what they thought about the bill. I asked them two questions — first, if they supported Carmichael's bill, and second, if they didn't to explain why. Five members of the 13-member panel responded. Carmichael and Reps. Boog Highberger, D-Lawrence, Annie Kuether, D-Topeka, Dan Osman, D-Overland Park, and John Wheeler, R-Garden City, all support making the change.” (“This Kansas Law Makes Being Gay Illegal. So now you as the employer are caught in an impossible position. Do you adhere to Federal Law and risk millions in fines from Kansas...or do you follow Kansas law and risk losing Federal contracts worth millions? The Republicans don’t want to increase funding to the Kansas Department of Labor. On Monday, the Kansas House and Senate convened a special session to discuss the Federal vaccine mandates. We worked from 10 A.M until 11:30 P.M. and passed HB 2001.

I voted NO on this bill.

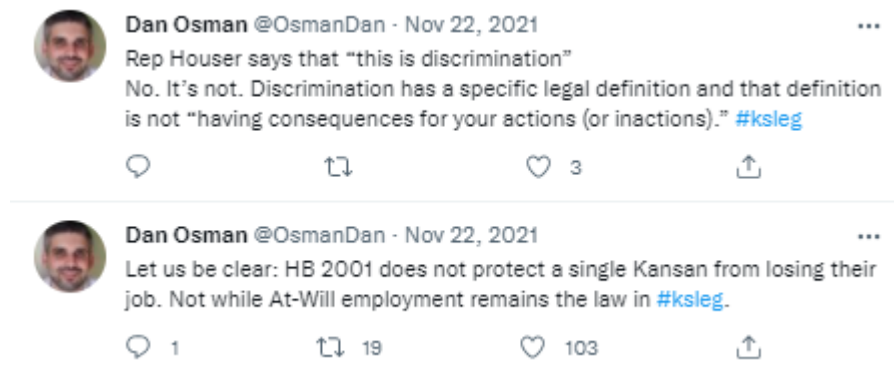

Regardless of your view on the vaccine mandates, this bill was not the solution to any problems. The only thing it will do is exacerbate them.

HB 2001 allows any Kansan the ability to declare that they hold a “sincerely held religious belief” against the vaccine. This belief cannot be questioned. If approved by the House of Representatives, SB 407 would require retailers to attach plastic registration tags to kegs of beer that have a capacity of over four gallons. Retailers would also have to collect the driver's-license numbers of all purchasers. While this bill realistically will not stop all underage drinking, it will be a positive step forward in curbing a large problem of underage drinking at keg parties. -From an editorial by Amy Potter in the University Daily Kansan, the University of Kansas The point of the bill obviously is to curb underage drinking. But how it accomplishes that goal is still a little hazy. Is it trying to punish business es who sell to minors? There are already laws and regulations that deal with that. This bill eliminates our freedom in the name of punishing the wrongdoers. The problem is that it doesn't actually help in punishing anybody. It just adds needless complication to a system that works fine as it is. -From an editorial by Dan Osman in the University Daily Kansan.” (The Wichita Eagle, 3/9/02)

In 2014, Osman Noted His Implicit Support For A Statewide Pre-K Program In Missouri And Noted His Goal To Establish A Pre-K Program While Serving On The Hickman Mills School Board. “A growing body of research provides good evidence that pre-K programs have positive impacts on children’s cognitive skills, including both pre-reading and pre-math skills. On average, kids who do not get a good preschool education are at a significant disadvantage their entire educational career versus those who have received it. In short, early education matters. Hickman Mills needs an early childhood program in the district. It should expand upon the great work that the Freda Markley Center is already doing, but it should be available for everyone, regardless of need or ability. The state is currently lacking in funding to provide a universal pre-K program, so for the moment we’ll have to solve the problem ourselves. ## MY GOALS

Develop Early Childhood Education

A growing body of research provides good evidence that pre-K programs have positive impacts on children’s cognitive skills, including both pre-reading and pre-math skills. On average, kids who do not get a good preschool education are at a significant disadvantage their entire educational career versus those who have received it. In short, early education matters.

Hickman Mills needs an early childhood program in the district. It should expand upon the great work that the Freda Markley Center is already doing, but it should be available for everyone, regardless of need or ability. The state is currently lacking in funding to provide a universal pre-K program, so for the moment we’ll have to solve the problem ourselves. But I want our district to be a model in Missouri for how we can turn this district around.

Hostile election bill killed in committee

There are, unfortunately, quite a number of bills this session targeting voter rights. HB 2585 was a prime example of this. Its short title was "Requiring all advance voting ballots be returned by 7 pm on election day."

The current law is that all ballots postmarked by election day will be counted so long as the mail delivers them within three days the election. This makes perfect sense as the election results aren't even certified within the first three days, so the numbers are constantly being updated. HB 2585 says that if the mailed ballot isn't received by close of polls, it no longer would count. This would disenfranchise thousands of Kansans. When the current law was first proposed, 164 out of 165 legislators voted in favor of it. Now, just five years later, Republicans are trying to strip it all away! I wonder what changed in just the last few years...?

Debate on this bill raged on an hour past its scheduled end time. But, in the end, we accomplished our goal: a majority of the committee voted to recommend this bill not be reported favorably out of committee. It effectively killed the bill for the remainder of the session.

It's a great win, but the battle isn't over. There's always another election bill around the corner.

OSMAN'S QUESTIONABLE LEADERSHIP

Osman, who had served on the Hickman Mills School Board since 2011, was a member of the school board when a scathing audit was released in 2014 by the state auditor. The audit lambasted the school board for poor oversight and controls, among several other issues. More specifically, the audit found that the school board “did not follow its policies or state law when selecting a new superintendent” (a process that took place during Osman’s tenure) and had “not been providing adequate oversight.” Meanwhile, the audit found the school district as a whole was still facing financial difficulties, had failed to solicit proposals for auditing and necessary legal services, and had “not always complied with the sunshine law and held numerous improper close meetings” The Kansas City Star Editorial Board described the Hickman Mill school district as having “[slipped] out of control.”

Years after the audit, Osman faced more turbulence when his decision to move out of the state resulted in his resignation. In September 2016, Jackson County (MO) prosecutors were known to be reviewing a complaint that Osman was violating state statute because he no longer lived in the Hickman Mills School District. Osman’s residency issue troubled some other members of the school board and ultimately led to Osman’s resignation. Kansas City Star columnist Mary Sanchez wrote: “Osman had moved into Kansas but wanted to remain on the board. The south Kansas City community rightfully backlashed at the suggestion, prompting his resignation.”

Despite currently claiming to have lived in Kansas “almost my entire life”, a review of the historical Hickman Mills School Board website reveals that Osman once wrote: “my wife and I have made our home in the Hickman Mills for almost a decade. We’re proud to call South Kansas City our home.”

Finally, it should be noted that Osman has occasionally promoted questionable humor on social media. In 2009, Osman used the term “twat” to describe his first Twitter post. In 2012, Osman wrote that “slave labor is the height of humor.” Osman also appears to enjoy traditional ‘bathroom humor.’

Schweich’s audit is a saga of contracts being awarded without bids, wasteful travel by some board members and employees, multiple questionable expenditures, hefty amounts of money spent on meals, improperly closed meetings and some very strange personnel moves. This is what happens when not enough people are watching. While media in Kansas City were focused on what was going on with the larger Kansas City Public Schools district, few noticed that Hickman Mills was slipping out of control. Inattention and weak board leadership created a vacuum, and some greedy people in the community slipped in to grab contracts, jobs and other taxpayer-provided perks. By last spring, the tenacles of Freedom Inc., the political club, were leaving puncture marks in the district’s fabric. The district had slipped to provisional accreditation and its finances were shaky. Schweich’s audit details how former school board President Breman Anderson, a Freedom member, seemingly singlehandedly engineered a swap of acting superintendents in 2012, with the public, fellow board members and even the ousted placeholder in the dark about the move. Anderson used his board position to create a small fiefdom, even ordering staff to write a check with district funds for a Alpha Kappa Alpha debutante ball fundraiser on behalf of a former board secretary’s daughter. The one good thing that happened under Anderson’s leadership was the hiring of current Superintendent Dennis Carpenter, although the audit has plenty to say about the expensive search process.” (Editorial, “Audit Details Hickman Mills School District Shenanigans,” The Kansas City Star, 3/4/14)

- NOTE: The Kansas City Star Editorial Noted That The Board Agreed With The Audit’s Findings But That Osman Was Among “Straight Shooters Who Follow The Rules.” “Carpenter, who hails from Georgia, is working overtime to get the district operating on a professional basis. It helps — a lot — that the board staged a coup last May and ousted Anderson. The current president, Eric Lowe, and the vice president, Dan Osman, are straight shooters who follow the rules. The board and superintendent pretty much agree with all of the criticisms and recommendations in Schweich’s audit. Progress will continue as long as Carpenter stays and the current board membership remains in place. That’s not a given; 10 candidates are running for three open school board seats in next month’s election. Some of them, including Anderson, are thought to have ties to Freedom. The chances of history repeating itself as slim, though. Because this time, we’ll all be watching.” (Editorial, “Audit Details Hickman Mills School District Shenanigans,” The Kansas City Star, 3/4/14)

In November 2014, Missouri Auditor Tom Schweich's Office Issued A Follow-Up Report From His March 2014 Audit That Revealed A Series Of Leadership And Financial Control Deficiencies; The Follow Up Reported Progress On 16 Of 17 Problems Areas. "Eight months after a state audit revealed a series of leadership and financial control deficiencies, the Hickman Mills School District appears to be in recovery. Missouri Auditor Tom Schweich's office on Wednesday released a status report. Of 17 problem areas cited in a March report, recommended fixes for 16 of them either have been completed or were being completed. "They have made a tremendous amount of progress in these eight months and we hope to see them continue on this path," said Spence Jackson, spokesman for the auditor's office. Schweich's office audited the district after receiving a citizens' petition. While in most cases an entity gets 90 days to shape up, the district received seven months "because of the complexity and severity of the findings," Jackson said. "In most cases there just wasn't sufficient monitoring and oversight," he said. "We did not find any stolen or missing money. It came down to weak controls." The district fixed those problems by decreasing the size of its staff, including teachers and teachers' aides. The district reported an unrestricted fund balance of about $16 million at the end of June. The district cash balance as a percentage of expenditures rose from 13.5 percent in June 2012 to 28 percent in June 2014.” (“Missouri Auditor Finds Improvement In Hickman Mills School District,” The Kansas City Star, 11/126/14)

Osman: “The Issues In The Audit Were Dealt With But Not Caused By The Current Leadership”

Osman: “The Issues In The Audit Were Dealt With But Not Caused By The Current Leadership.” “The issues in the audit were dealt with but not caused by the current leadership,” Osman said. The problems started under a previous administration. Last year, Dennis Carpenter came in as superintendent. He restructured the district leadership from his deputies down to principals and assistant principals. Voters elected new members to the school board. “This district is in a good place now,” Carpenter said. The audit report, he said, “provided a good road map to develop a systematic plan for improvement. We took each concern step by step and built a plan for each, not just a short-term fix.” In addition to cleaning up the problems brought out in the audit, the provisionally accredited district is on track to full accreditation, he said.” (“Missouri Auditor Finds Improvement In Hickman Mills School District,” The Kansas City Star, 11/126/14)

- “Having Controls In Place, Osman Said, ‘Is Important Now More Than Ever Before.’” “All of this comes at a good time for Hickman Mills. One of its elementary schools, Symington, recently won a million-dollar ConnectEd Initiative grant from Apple that will give the school a technology makeover, with Apple hardware and software and an iPad for every student, Osman said. The school is one of four in Missouri and 114 in the country selected for the grant. Having controls in place, Osman said, “is important now more than ever before.” (“Missouri Auditor Finds Improvement In Hickman Mills School District,” The Kansas City Star, 11/126/14)

In September 2016, Jackson County (MO) Prosecutors Were Known To Be Reviewing A Complaint That Osman Was Violating State Statute Because He No Longer Lived In The Hickman Mills School District; “Osman Recently Informed His Fellows That As Of July, He Had Moved Out Of The District, To Kansas, But Continues To Own, Maintain And Pay Taxes On His Former Home.” “The Jackson County prosecutor's office is reviewing a complaint that a member of the Hickman Mills school board may be violating state statute because he no longer lives in the district. The prosecutor's office received the complaint this week but did not reveal who made it. A section of the law gives the county prosecutor jurisdiction to force the removal of someone from a Missouri district school board if he or she is found to be illegally holding the post. Hickman Mills school board member Dan Osman recently informed his fellows that as of July, he had moved out of the district, to Kansas, but continues to own, maintain and pay taxes on his former home. In his letter to the board, Osman, 39 and a Kansas City lawyer, said, "It is my intention -- and my desire -- to remain on the board through the remainder of my current term, which ends in April 2017." ("Hickman Mills School Board Split Over Member's Residency, Qualifications," The Kansas City Star, 9/2/16)

- “Osman Said He Believes That Continuing On The Board Under His Current Residency Status Is "Permissible," Because Missouri Statue Only Lays Out Rules For Potential Board Candidates But Does Not Address Residency Criteria For Sitting Board Members.” “Osman said he believes that continuing on the board under his current residency status is "permissible," because Missouri statue only lays out rules for potential board candidates but does not address residency criteria for sitting board members. Osman said he wrote the letter to be proactive and "in the interest of full disclosure." He added, too, that "if it is the will of my fellow board members, I will reluctantly tender my resignation from the board." Osman said that when he told board members last week about moving, "there were no objections to me remaining on the board," he said.” (“Hickman Mills School Board Split Over Member's Residency, Qualifications,” The Kansas City Star, 9/2/16)

“The Issue Seems To Have Split The Seven-Member Board, With Three Members Siding With Osman's Wish To Remain On The Board And Three Board Members... Calling For Osman To Resign”

“The Issue Seems To Have Split The Seven-Member Board, With Three Members Siding With Osman's Wish To Remain On The Board And Three Board Members, In A Letter Addressed To District Superintendent Dennis Carpenter, Calling For Osman To Resign.” The issue seems to have split the seven-member board, with three members siding with Osman's wish to remain on the board and three board members, in a letter addressed to district Superintendent Dennis Carpenter, calling for Osman to resign. The superintendent serves at the will of the board and has no power to force a board member to resign. According to information on the Missouri School Boards' Association website, Missouri statute requires school board candidates "to be a citizen of the United States, a resident taxpayer of the district, a resident of Missouri for one year next preceding the election, and 24 years of age." Several districts, including Kansas City and Lee's Summit in this area, require that board members be "voters of the district" rather than "resident taxpayers." The statute goes on to say that the "resident" part of

"resident taxpayer" is not ambiguous. Individuals must reside within the district in order to run for the board; simply owning land within the district's boundaries is not enough." ("Hickman Mills School Board Split Over Member's Residency, Qualifications," The Kansas City Star, 9/2/16)

- “Osman Was Living In The District When He Ran And Was Elected To The Position In 2011. He Said He's Certain He Could Not Run For Re-Election To The Board Now That He's Moved, But "I'm Willing And Able To Remain On The Board Or Leave If That Is What Is Best For The District.” “Osman was living in the district when he ran and was elected to the position in 2011. He said he's certain he could not run for re-election to the board now that he's moved, but "I'm willing and able to remain on the board or leave if that is what is best for the district." The board will take up the issue at its next public work session Sept. 15.” (“Hickman Mills School Board Split Over Member's Residency, Qualifications,” The Kansas City Star, 9/2/16)

By September 2016, Osman Resigned From His Seat On The Hickman Mills School Board

By September 7, 2016, Osman Resigned From His Seat On The Hickman Mills School Board. “In a letter to Hickman Mills school leaders Wednesday, Dan Osman resigned from his seat on the board of directors. Osman came under fire last week from members of the Hickman Mills School Board and the community after he announced to the board that he had moved out of the Missouri district to live in Kansas, but wanted to remain on the board. A review of his residency status was launched by the Jackson County prosecutor's office after a member of the community filed a complaint against Osman, charging that he was in violation of Missouri statute by serving on a school board in Missouri when he lived out of state. When Osman, a 39-year-old Kansas City lawyer, told board members about his residency change he asked if he could serve out the remainder of his term, which expires April 2017. The issue split the seven-member board, with three members siding with Osman's wish to remain on the board and three board members calling for him to resign. "I wanted to fulfill the commitment I made to the district and the community when I was elected," Osman said in his letter. In Wednesday's letter Osman urged the board to find a new member "quickly," and thanked the community for the "privilege to serve," the past five years.” (“Hickman Mills School Board Member Resigns,” The Kansas City Star, 9/7/16)

Kansas City Star Columnist Mary Sanchez: “Dan Osman Resigned The Seat In September. Osman Had Moved Into Kansas But Wanted To Remain On The Board. The South Kansas City Community Rightfully Backlashed At The Suggestion, Prompting His Resignation”

Kansas City Star Columnist Mary Sanchez: “Dan Osman Resigned The Seat In September. Osman Had Moved Into Kansas But Wanted To Remain On The Board. The South Kansas City Community Rightfully Backlashed At The Suggestion, Prompting His Resignation.” “A complaint about Hildebrand's unpaid taxes was filed by a member of the community. And it appears that the Department of Revenue failed to let the school district know. The school district's attorney, Chris Gahagan, said Hickman Mills could have addressed the issue of Hildebrand's eligibility prior to the election, including whether her name should have remained on the ballot had they known. Hildebrand will now also have a vote in filling an open seat of the board. Dan Osman resigned the seat in September. Osman had moved into Kansas but wanted to remain on the board. The south Kansas City community rightfully backlashed at the suggestion, prompting his resignation. This legal squabble only takes the focus away from serving the children of Hickman Mills. That's the shame here. It's behind-the-scenes jostling that takes time and attention away from forming a cohesive board with its sole focus being the quality of education that children receive. And the children of Hickman Mills need and deserve the loyalty of a strong board.” (Mary Sanchez, Column, “Newest Hickman Mills School Board Members Are Starting With Controversy,” The Kansas City Star, 10/19/16)

When we were blessed with the birth of my daughter in November of 2010, I decided to help improve our schools. I signed up to run just three weeks after she was born. Continuing this tradition, my wife and I are expecting our second daughter this May. This second blessing has doubled my commitment to our community and schools! As a member of the Hickman Mills School Board -- and sitting school board Vice President -- I've focused on shaping a better community for everyone. Over the last three years, I've worked with students, teachers, parents, administrators, and my fellow board members to turn the Hickman Mills district into the best school system it can be. ## APPENDIX A: REPRESENTATIVE ISSUES

Below is a non-comprehensive reference section pertaining to Dan Osman's issues and policy positions of note. Any actionable material from this section has been incorporated into the prior narrative sections.

FISCAL AND ECONOMIC ISSUES

Taxes

Overall

Osman Has Been Deeply Critical Of Former Gov. Sam Brownback's Tax Reform Agenda.

"I'm a small business owner and I can tell you definitively that Brownback's failed tax experiment did nothing to increase my number of employees. It did not allow me the funds to reinvest in my business. The only thing it did was add a tiny bit of cash into my own pocket at the expense of our schools, our infrastructure, and our safety. I don't consider that a reasonable tradeoff." (Dan For Kan, Accessed 3/28/22)

- H Sub Sub HB 2512: Making appropriations for the Kansas state department of education for FY 2022, FY 2023 and FY 2024, establishing requirements relating to academic achievement and third-grade literacy, authorizing credits to be earned through alternative educational opportunities, requiring KSHSAA members and employees to report child abuse and neglect, requiring boards of education of school districts to consider district needs assessments and academic assessments when approving district budgets, authorizing part-time enrollment for certain students, establishing an alternative graduation rate calculation for virtual schools, providing virtual school state aid for credit deficient students and amending the age of initial eligibility for the tax credit for low income students scholarship program. Final Action, substitute passed as amended; 76-46.I voted NO.

Development

During His 2019 Campaign For Overland Park Council, Osman Called For An Independent, Third Party Analysis Of Developer Estimates. “In 2012, Overland Park issued nearly $65 million in Kansas sales tax revenue, or STAR bonds, for the Prairiefire retail and entertainment development. Prairiefire has paid back only a small amount of the original principal, leaving a $64.8 million outstanding balance after seven years. The City Council also approved a community improvement district for the development, allowing the site to charge an additional 1.5-cent sales tax. As the state reviews its guidelines for determining what projects are actually eligible to receive STAR bonds, some candidates are calling for the city to undergo a similar review of its own incentive programs. "The failure is with Overland Park City Council not setting up more stringent standards in its policies and its development agreements. Overland Park needs an independent third party analysis on all developer estimates," said newcomer Dan Osman, who is challenging Spears in the 4th Ward. He also criticized the city allowing the Bluhawk development, which includes a multisport and hockey arena, to apply for STAR bonds without a more thorough, unbiased economic analysis.” (“Tax Guzzlers: Developer Tax Breaks A Defining Issue Of Johnson County's Elections,” The Kansas City Star, 11/2/19)

Affordable Housing

During His 2019 Campaign, Osman Strongly Pushed For Increased Affordable Housing In Overland Park And Argued “Developers Using Tax Incentives Will Need To Provide Affordable Housing Options In All Their Plans To Secure Abatements.” (“Affordable Housing Proves A Vexing Problem For City Government Candidates In Johnson County,” The Journal, 9/16/19)

A Bipartisan Effort: Easing Restrictions on Food & Child Care Assistance

Closing out a full day of general orders, the House debated HB 2525. A bipartisan group of Representatives made a case to remove non-cooperation with child support from requirements for food and child care assistance eligibility, and exempting adults enrolled in school from the 20-hour-per-week work requirement.

In practice, the bill would allow parents to access food assistance without pursuing child support or working 20 hours per week while also enrolled in school. Proponents claimed that a victim of domestic violence would not be forced to reconnect with their abuser in order to obtain food or child care assistance, preventing the parent or legal guardian and child from danger or further abuse. Proponents also pointed to young, single parents still in high school. It was said, “They might not be working for an income, but they are working as they raise a newborn and attend classes.”

The bill failed 66-53. Many Republicans and all Democrats voted in favor of the bill but it just wasn't enough. Democrats repeatedly highlighted the hypocrisy of some Republicans who opposed HB 2525 yet chant “value them both,” a reference to the anti-abortion amendment on the upcoming August primary ballot.

The only thing it will do is exacerbate them. HB 2001 allows any Kansan the ability to declare that they hold a “sincerely held religious belief” against the vaccine. This belief cannot be questioned. It does not require any proof as to the sincerity of the belief. It obligates the business to waive its internal mandates or risk being fined up to $50,000 per employee per instance. Let us be clear: this Bill does NOT waive any Federal requirements. It can’t. So now you as the employer are caught in an impossible position. Do you adhere to Federal Law and risk millions in fines from Kansas...or do you follow Kansas law and risk losing Federal contracts worth millions? The Republicans don’t want to increase funding to the Kansas Department of Labor. The enforcement mechanisms of HB 2001 put an undue burden on KDOL, causing a ripple of unintended consequences across the state. A glorious side "benefit" to this bill not helping anyone is you get to break the government in the process! HB 2001 will almost certainly be struck down by the courts. The Republicans know this too. It’s why they hastily added in a clause in the last hours of negotiation in case that very thing happened, to try to salvage something from this mess of a special session.” (E-Mail, Dan Osman, 11/24/21)

On Monday, the Kansas House and Senate convened a special session to discuss the Federal vaccine mandates. We worked from 10 A.M until 11:30 P.M. and passed HB 2001.

I voted NO on this bill.

Regardless of your view on the vaccine mandates, this bill was not the solution to any problems. The only thing it will do is exacerbate them.

HB 2001 allows any Kansan the ability to declare that they hold a “sincerely held religious belief” against the vaccine. This belief cannot be questioned. It does not require any proof as to the sincerity of the belief. It obligates the business to waive its internal mandates or risk being fined up to $50,000 per employee per instance.

Dan Osman requested Thursday the Kansas Republican Party and Attorney General Derek Schmidt condemn comparisons of mask or vaccination mandates during the pandemic to the genocidal campaign by Nazis to murder 6 million Jewish people during the Holocaust. The use of symbolism drawn from the late 1930s and early 1940s amid World War II repeatedly came up during the two-day hearing of the Kansas Legislature's special committee on COVID-19 overreach as several witnesses linked ongoing public health policies at the state and federal government levels to actions by Germany and its allies to repress

Jews, including wearing a yellow Star of David on clothing in Nazi-occupied Europe. Levin, founding rabbi of the Congregation Beth Torah in Overland Park, said it would be best if politicians and others dropped the practice of drawing connections to the history of persecution against Jewish people and the still-present horror of the Holocaust when scuffling with others about COVID-19. He said the politics of the pandemic response could be considered without diving into evil intent of Adolph Hitler.” (“Rabbi, Democratic Legislator Urge Kansas GOP To Denounce COVID-19 Critiques Tied To Holocaust,” Kansas Reflector, 11/4/21)

Special Education

In March 2022, Osman Noted That He Voted For The Ousley Amendment To Add $68 Million To Special Education Funding And Criticized Republicans Who Later Reversed The Funding Decision. “Two very close votes decided the direction of two education bills this week. First, in a rare moment of bipartisan teamwork, the House passed a budget amendment proposed by House Democrat Jarrod Ousley to add $68 million to special education funding on a 58-54 vote. The amendment was the first step in a 5-year plan to hit the statutorily-required 92% funding level. Current funding levels are at 70%. In a move that caused whiplash, Republicans immediately voted to reverse the funding decision. The final vote count was now 50-70.” (E-Mail, Dan Osman, 3/27/22)

Education Bills and Budget

Two very close votes decided the direction of two education bills this week.

First, in a rare moment of bipartisan teamwork, the House passed a budget amendment proposed by House Democrat Jarrold Ousley to add $68 million to special education funding on a 58-54 vote. The amendment was the first step in a 5-year plan to hit the statutorily-required 92% funding level. Current funding levels are at 70%. In a move that caused whiplash, Republicans immediately voted to reverse the funding decision. The final vote count was now 50-70.

The second close call came from HB 2615. Allowing K-12 students to transfer to and attend school in any school district in the state. This program is a convoluted mess that will either a) take funding out of Johnson County schools to give to other districts. or b) require Johnson County schools to provide an education to students outside the County with no additional compensation or reimbursement. On Monday, I spoke with five superintendents of school districts within Johnson County. Not a single superintendent supported this bill.

The vote was 63-59. I know that not everyone who reads this newsletter lives in District 48 so please look to see how your legislator voted on this issue. If even three additional Johnson County legislators had voted against this, we could have killed it on the floor.

Pre-K

Universal Pre-K

In 2014, Osman Noted His Implicit Support For A Statewide Pre-K Program In Missouri And Noted His Goal To Establish A Pre-K Program While Serving On The Hickman Mills School Board. “A growing body of research provides good evidence that pre-K programs have positive impacts on children’s cognitive skills, including both pre-reading and pre-math skills. On average, kids who do not get a good preschool education are at a significant disadvantage their entire educational career versus those who have received it. In short, early education matters. Hickman Mills needs an early childhood program in the district. It should expand upon the great work that the Freda Markley Center is already doing, but it should be available for everyone, regardless of need or ability. The state is currently lacking in funding to provide a universal pre-K program, so for the moment we’ll have to solve the problem ourselves. But I want our district to be a model in Missouri for how we can turn this district around.” (Osman 4 Hickman, Accessed 3/28/22)

Replacing Anderson with Eric Lowe was the essential first step toward a stable administrative footing. Osman, a lawyer, is the board vice president. Mims is a Missouri legislator. Palmer, a warehouse manager, represents Kansas City’s southeast region on the Neighborhood Advisory Council. The winners were incumbents Dan Osman and Bonnaye Mims and newcomer Karry Palmer. The vote came three days after many households received an anonymous mailing attacking the three, including linking one to a child rapist and accusing another as being far behind on child support payments. The attempt at sabotage fits well into a school district in turmoil. A year ago, board president Breman Anderson Jr., was ousted from a leadership role. ## Audit (2014)

2014 Audit: “The District's Financial Condition Has Improved But Is Still Below The Minimum Recommended Level.” “The district's financial condition has improved but is still below the minimum recommended level. While further reductions in expenditures may be necessary, some reductions can be accomplished through more efficient management practices and more effective controls and procedures.” (Hickman Mills C-1 School District, Missouri State Auditor, March 2014)

2014 Audit: “The Board Did Not Follow Its Policies Or State Law When Selecting A New Superintendent.” “The Board did not follow its policies or state law when selecting a new superintendent. The Board did not solicit proposals for a search firm and allowed the search firm to participate in negotiating the new superintendent's contract, even though its fee was contingent on the starting salary. The search process was not well planned and the fee arrangement was significantly higher than it would have been had the Missouri School Board Association been used to conduct the superintendent search.” (Hickman Mills C-1 School District, Missouri State Auditor, March 2014)

2014 Audit: “The District Did Not Solicit Proposals For Auditing And Legal Services Related To Former Superintendent Dr. Marjorie Williams' Leave Balances And Did Not Make The Completed Audit Public Or Share It With The Full Board.” “The district did not solicit proposals for auditing and legal services related to former Superintendent Dr. Marjorie Williams' leave balances and did not make the completed audit public or share it with the full Board. District records showed Dr. Williams was owed $195,000 in leave payout, the formal audit determined she was owed $150,000, but the Board paid only $72,000. Subsequently, Dr. Williams sued and the district had to pay an additional $90,000. The Board did not monitor Dr. Williams' absences or leave, and, according to district records, she used only 3 days of vacation leave during her last 7 years of employment, the accuracy of which some Board members have questioned.” (Hickman Mills C-1 School District, Missouri State Auditor, March 2014)

2014 Audit: “Board Members Have Not Been Providing Adequate Oversight.” “Board members have not been providing adequate oversight. The Board made several decisions with less than a majority of members' approval and failed to obtain written contracts with some vendors. In addition, some contracts were not provided to district administrative personnel and the failure to compare supporting documentation to a contract resulted in an overpayment to one vendor.” (Hickman Mills C-1 School District, Missouri State Auditor, March 2014)

2014 Audit: “The District Did Not Always Comply With The Sunshine Law And Held Numerous Improper Closed Meetings. (Hickman Mills C-1 School District, Missouri State Auditor, March 2014)

2014 Audit: “The District Needs To Improve Controls Over Procurement Cards.” “The district needs to improve controls over procurement cards. Approval of procurement card statements and supporting documentation is not done in accordance with administrative procedure, numerous purchases were unallowable or appear unreasonable, and the district lacks policies and controls for the use and distribution of student incentives.” (Hickman Mills C-1 School District, Missouri State Auditor, March 2014)

2014 Audit: “The District Does Not Separately Account For Meals And Food Purchases For The Board Or Employees, And Food Purchases Were Often Made Without Documenting The Purpose Or Those In Attendance.” (Hickman Mills C-1 School District, Missouri State Auditor, March 2014)

2014 Audit: “Board Policy Prohibits Teachers From Using More Than 10 Professional Leave Days In A Year, But 25 Teachers Used More Than 10 Days And Two Teachers Used More Than 20 Days.” “Board policy prohibits teachers from using more than 10 professional leave days in a year, but 25 teachers used more than 10 days and two teachers used more than 20 days. Board policy also prohibits employees from using more than 20 days of leave in a year, but 23 employees exceeded 20 days.” (Hickman Mills C-1 School District, Missouri State Auditor, March 2014)

2014 Audit: “The District Made Several Disbursements That Did Not Have A Clear School District Or Educational Purpose.” (Hickman Mills C-1 School District, Missouri State Auditor, March 2014)

2014 Audit: “Board Members And/Or Employees Traveled To Numerous Conferences In Out-Of-State Locations.” “Board members and/or employees traveled to numerous conferences in out-ofstate locations. The district spent $26,000 for all 7 members of the Board, the former Interim Superintendent, and former Board Secretary to attend a 3-day conference in Boston, during which former Board President Anderson attended only one training session, Board member Mims attended only 2 training sessions, and the former Board Secretary attended 5 sessions, none of which covered board secretary duties. Four Board members attended the same 3-day conference in San Diego, CA in 2013, at which former Board President Anderson received only 181 minutes of training. Meal advances were not calculated correctly, and audit staff found a net overpayment of $515 for the tested transactions. Former Superintendent Dr. Marjorie Williams was on travel 39 days during her last year before retirement, including two out-of-state conferences during her last month of employment with the district. The district has no policy in place for employees traveling by car to the same destination on the same dates.” (Hickman Mills C-1 School District, Missouri State Auditor, March 2014)

2014 Audit: “District Personnel Did Not Always Solicit Bids Or Proposals For Purchases When Required By District Policy.” “District personnel did not always solicit bids or proposals for purchases when required by district policy. The district has used the same provider to serve as financial advisor and bond underwriter for several general obligation bond issues, and sold these using a negotiated sale, which violates district policy. In addition, the district does not adequately monitor employment contracts with several employees retired under the Public School Retirement System.” (Hickman Mills C-1 School District, Missouri State Auditor, March 2014)

Kansas City Star Editorial Board: “While Media In Kansas City Were Focused On What Was Going On With The Larger Kansas City Public Schools District, Few Noticed That Hickman Mills Was Slipping Out Of Control. Inattention And Weak Board Leadership Created A Vacuum, And Some Greedy People In The Community Slipped In To Grab Contracts, Jobs And Other Taxpayer-Provided Perks.” “A report by Missouri Auditor Tom Schweich paints a picture of the Hickman Mills School District running amok. Schweich’s audit is a saga of contracts being awarded without bids, wasteful travel by some board members and employees, multiple questionable expenditures, hefty amounts of money spent on meals, improperly closed meetings and some very strange personnel moves. This is what happens when not enough people are watching. While media in Kansas City were focused on what was going on with the larger Kansas City Public Schools district, few noticed that Hickman Mills was slipping out of control. Inattention and weak board leadership created a vacuum, and some greedy people in the community slipped in to grab contracts, jobs and other taxpayer-provided perks. By last spring, the tenacles of Freedom Inc., the political club, were leaving puncture marks in the district's fabric. The district had slipped to provisional accreditation and its finances were shaky. Schweich's audit details how former school board President Breman Anderson, a Freedom member, seemingly singlehandedly engineered a swap of acting superintendents in 2012, with the public, fellow board members and even the ousted placeholder in the dark about the move. Anderson used his board position to create a small fiefdom, even ordering staff to write a check with district funds for a Alpha Kappa Alpha debutante ball fundraiser on behalf of a former board secretary's daughter. The one good thing that happened under Anderson's leadership was the hiring of current Superintendent Dennis Carpenter, although the audit has plenty to say about the expensive search process." - NOTE: The Kansas City Star Editorial Noted That The Board Agreed With The Audit's Findings But That Osman Was Among "Straight Shooters Who Follow The Rules." "Carpenter, who hails from Georgia, is working overtime to get the district operating on a professional basis. It helps — a lot — that the board staged a coup last May and ousted Anderson. The current president, Eric Lowe, and the vice president, Dan Osman, are straight shooters who follow the rules. The board and superintendent pretty much agree with all of the criticisms and recommendations in Schweich's audit. Progress will continue as long as Carpenter stays and the current board membership remains in place. That's not a given; 10 candidates are running for three open school board seats in next month's election. Some of them, including Anderson, are thought to have ties to Freedom. The chances of history repeating itself as slim, though. Because this time, we'll all be watching." In November 2014, Missouri Auditor Tom Schweich's Office Issued A Follow-Up Report From His March 2014 Audit That Revealed A Series Of Leadership And Financial Control Deficiencies; The Follow Up Reported Progress On 16 Of 17 Problems Areas. "Eight months after a state audit revealed a series of leadership and financial control deficiencies, the Hickman Mills School District appears to be in recovery. Missouri Auditor Tom Schweich's office on Wednesday released a status report. Of 17 problem areas cited in a March report, recommended fixes for 16 of them either have been completed or were being completed. "They have made a tremendous amount of progress in these eight months and we hope to see them continue on this path," said Spence Jackson, spokesman for the auditor's office. Schweich's office audited the district after receiving a citizens' petition. While in most cases an entity gets 90 days to shape up, the district received seven months "because of the complexity and severity of the findings," Jackson said. "In most cases there just wasn't sufficient monitoring and oversight," he said. "We did not find any stolen or missing money. It came down to weak controls." The problems started under a previous administration. Last year, Dennis Carpenter came in as superintendent. He restructured the district leadership from his deputies down to principals and assistant principals. Voters elected new members to the school board. "This district is in a good place now," Carpenter said. The audit report, he said, "provided a good road map to develop a systematic plan for improvement. We took each concern step by step and built a plan for each, not just a short-term fix." In addition to cleaning up the problems brought out in the audit, the provisionally accredited district is on track to full accreditation, he said.” (“Missouri Auditor Finds Improvement In Hickman Mills School District,” The Kansas City Star, 11/126/14)

He Had Moved Out Of The District, To Kansas, But Continues To Own, Maintain And Pay Taxes On His Former Home. “The Jackson County prosecutor's office is reviewing a complaint that a member of the Hickman Mills school board may be violating state statute because he no longer lives in the district. The prosecutor's office received the complaint this week but did not reveal who made it. A section of the law gives the county prosecutor jurisdiction to force the removal of someone from a Missouri district school board if he or she is found to be illegally holding the post. Hickman Mills school board member Dan Osman recently informed his fellows that as of July, he had moved out of the district, to Kansas, but continues to own, maintain and pay taxes on his former home. In his letter to the board, Osman, 39 and a Kansas City lawyer, said, "It is my intention -- and my desire -- to remain on the board through the remainder of my current term, which ends in April 2017.” (“Hickman Mills School Board Split Over Member's Residency, Qualifications,” The Kansas City Star, 9/2/16)

“The Issue Seems To Have Split The Seven-Member Board, With Three Members Siding With Osman's Wish To Remain On The Board And Three Board Members, In A Letter Addressed To District Superintendent Dennis Carpenter, Calling For Osman To Resign.” The issue seems to have split the seven-member board, with three members siding with Osman's wish to remain on the board and three board members, in a letter addressed to district Superintendent Dennis Carpenter, calling for Osman to resign. The superintendent serves at the will of the board and has no power to force a board member to resign. According to information on the Missouri School Boards' Association website, Missouri statute requires school board candidates "to be a citizen of the United States, a resident taxpayer of the district, a resident of Missouri for one year next preceding the election, and 24 years of age." Several districts, including Kansas City and Lee's Summit in this area, require that board members be "voters of the district" rather than "resident taxpayers." The statute goes on to say that the "resident" part of

"resident taxpayer" is not ambiguous. Individuals must reside within the district in order to run for the board; simply owning land within the district's boundaries is not enough." ("Hickman Mills School Board Split Over Member's Residency, Qualifications," The Kansas City Star, 9/2/16)

He said he's certain he could not run for re-election to the board now that he's moved, but "I'm willing and able to remain on the board or leave if that is what is best for the district." The board will take up the issue at its next public work session Sept. 15.” (“Hickman Mills School Board Split Over Member's Residency, Qualifications,” The Kansas City Star, 9/2/16)

By September 7, 2016, Osman Resigned From His Seat On The Hickman Mills School Board. “In a letter to Hickman Mills school leaders Wednesday, Dan Osman resigned from his seat on the board of directors. Osman came under fire last week from members of the Hickman Mills School Board and the community after he announced to the board that he had moved out of the Missouri district to live in Kansas, but wanted to remain on the board. A review of his residency status was launched by the Jackson County prosecutor's office after a member of the community filed a complaint against Osman, charging that he was in violation of Missouri statute by serving on a school board in Missouri when he lived out of state. When Osman, a 39-year-old Kansas City lawyer, told board members about his residency change he asked if he could serve out the remainder of his term, which expires April 2017. The issue split the seven-member board, with three members siding with Osman's wish to remain on the board and three board members calling for him to resign. "I wanted to fulfill the commitment I made to the district and the community when I was elected," Osman said in his letter. In Wednesday's letter Osman urged the board to find a new member "quickly," and thanked the community for the "privilege to serve," the past five years.” (“Hickman Mills School Board Member Resigns,” The Kansas City Star, 9/7/16)

Kansas City Star Columnist Mary Sanchez: “Dan Osman Resigned The Seat In September. Osman Had Moved Into Kansas But Wanted To Remain On The Board. The South Kansas City Community Rightfully Backlashed At The Suggestion, Prompting His Resignation.”

“A complaint about Hildebrand's unpaid taxes was filed by a member of the community. And it appears that the Department of Revenue failed to let the school district know. The school district's attorney, Chris Gahagan, said Hickman Mills could have addressed the issue of Hildebrand's eligibility prior to the election, including whether her name should have remained on the ballot had they known. Hildebrand will now also have a vote in filling an open seat of the board. Dan Osman resigned the seat in September. Osman had moved into Kansas but wanted to remain on the board. The south Kansas City community rightfully backlashed at the suggestion, prompting his resignation. This legal squabble only takes the focus away from serving the children of Hickman Mills. That's the shame here. It's behind-the-scenes jostling that takes time and attention away from forming a cohesive board with its sole focus being the quality of education that children receive. And the children of Hickman Mills need and deserve the loyalty of a strong board.” (Mary Sanchez, Column, “Newest Hickman Mills School Board Members Are Starting With Controversy,” The Kansas City Star, 10/19/16)

While Working In The Kansas City Human Relations Department, Osman Noted “I Monitored Projects To Protect Laborers And Guarantee They’re Provided A Fair Wage For Their Work.” “Although my daughter inspired me to run for school board, public service has always been a part of my life. In April 2014, Osman Is Known To Have Been Endorsed By The National Education Association (NEA) For Relection. “Households in Kansas City's Hickman Mills School District have received anonymous mailings that smear three school board candidates. The Kansas City Star reports (<http://bit.ly/1qdnq11>) the mailings showed up in mailboxes on Saturday, ahead of the Tuesday election. The fliers attack incumbents Dan Osman and Bonnaye Mims and newcomer Karry Palmer. The fliers also don't show who paid for them, which violates state law. Palmer and Mims, a Missouri state representative, said similar false fliers were mailed in the 2013 election campaigns. All three candidates have been endorsed by the National Education Association, The Kansas City Call and The Kansas City Star. The other candidates are board member Breman Anderson Jr. and challengers Debbie Aiman, Tanesha Forte, Carol Graves, Shawn Hayes, Clifford O. Lawmakers are weighing two proposals targeting civil asset forfeiture, a legal procedure allowing the government to take money, guns, vehicles and other property they believe was involved in a crime. House Bill 2648 would require law enforcement to get a criminal conviction before proceeding with asset forfeiture and send the proceeds to the state general fund, among other related provisions. The 22-page bill was requested by lobbyist Mike O’Neal on behalf of Kansas Policy Institute, a limited-government think tank. House Bill 2640 would create a new process for criminal forfeiture of property worth less than $100,000. Rep. Dan Osman, D-Overland Park, introduced the 10-page bill, which would also bar seizure of money amounts under $200 and vehicles worth less than $2,000, among other provisions. "Have you ever tried to explain what civil asset forfeiture was to someone who'd never heard of it before?" Osman testified. "I have. I don't care where you are politically, the result is always the same. First their eyes get wide. Then they get shocked. Then they get confused. House Democrats Announce Constitutional Amendments to Legalize Marijuana and Expand Medicaid

Topeka, Kans. -- House Democrats today announced their introduction of three constitutional amendments that expand Medicaid, legalize medicinal marijuana, and legalize recreational marijuana.

Kansans want legalized marijuana and they need easy access to affordable health care. The amendments instruct the legislature to enact laws legalizing marijuana and expanding Medicaid by July 1, 2023.

"The legislature fails to expand Medicaid, and in the meantime, tens of thousands of Kansans suffer from inaction. It's time for Kansas to catch up. It's past time for us to listen to our constituents," says House Democratic Leader Tom Sawyer. Elaborating on the choice to adopt these policies via constitutional amendments, Sawyer explains, "Passing these constitutional amendments puts them up for adoption on the November ballot. Every voting Kansan will have their voice heard."

Renewed hospital funding and access to care will revitalize western and rural Kansas. Kansans seeking relief from illness will no longer travel across state lines to purchase marijuana, keeping more taxpayer dollars in the Kansas economy. Corporations and businesses will see greater success in recruiting employees. It's simple: Medicaid expansion and legalized marijuana are pro-business, pro-growth policies.

Assistant Democratic Leader Jason Probst, lead sponsor of the amendments, calls out the hypocrisy in lawmaking. "House and Senate Republicans have gone on and on for years about how crucial it is for Kansans to have a direct say on important matters in our state. When it comes to violating the Constitutional rights of women, they couldn't put their question to voters fast enough. Despite the longstanding and overwhelming support from Kansans for Medicaid expansion and reform of our marijuana laws, House and Senate Republicans will have an opportunity to demonstrate that they honestly value and trust the voters of Kansas to decide what's best for the state"

Rep. Probst continues, "During the upcoming legislative session, House and Senate Republicans will have an opportunity to demonstrate that they honestly value and trust the voters of Kansas to decide what's best for the state, or if they simply support public votes when it's politically advantageous to their re-election campaigns."

Keg Registration

In March 2002, Osman, As A Student At The University Of Kansas, Appears To Have Been Opposed To Legislation Mandating The Registration Of Kegs In A Bid To Curb Underage Drinking. “Keg-registration debate - With startling statistics and the horrific death rate associated with alcohol, it would only be ideal that the Kansas Senate would pass a bill that would require liquor store retailers to keep track of their kegs and those who purchase kegs. If approved by the House of Representatives, SB 407 would require retailers to attach plastic registration tags to kegs of beer that have a capacity of over four gallons. Retailers would also have to collect the driver's-license numbers of all purchasers. While this bill realistically will not stop all underage drinking, it will be a positive step forward in curbing a large problem of underage drinking at keg parties. -From an editorial by Amy Potter in the University Daily Kansan, the University of Kansas The point of the bill obviously is to curb underage drinking. But how it accomplishes that goal is still a little hazy. Is it trying to punish business es who sell to minors? There are already laws and regulations that deal with that. This bill eliminates our freedom in the name of punishing the wrongdoers. The problem is that it doesn't actually help in punishing anybody. It just adds needless complication to a system that works fine as it is. -From an editorial by Dan Osman in the University Daily Kansan.” (The Wichita Eagle, 3/9/02)

In February 2022, Osman Was Reported To Be Among The Legislators Of The House Committee On Corrections And Juvenile Justice To Amend Kansas Law And Remove A Phrase Effectively Criminalizing Same-Sex Sodomy Between Consenting Adults. “That’s right. State law defines[2] several categories of criminal sodomy, including ‘Sodomy between persons who are 16 or more years of age and members of the same sex.’ It’s a misdemeanor

punishable by up to six months[3] in prison. Are you gay? Have you every had intimate relations with another gay person in Kansas? Congratulations! You're a criminal. These laws once flourished throughout the United States, and they were a tool of discrimination against LGBTQ people. In Kansas, folks were prosecuted under these laws for no other reason than being themselves. Specifically, sex between same-gendered adults would be a misdemeanor criminal offense punishable by up to six months in prison. In a case called Lawrence v. Texas, the U.S. Supreme Court put an end to this nonsense. But despite calls to remove a flagrantly unconstitutional law from the books, former Gov. Sam Brownback didn't recommend doing so[4] in 2012 when his administration highlighted 51 measures for repeal. Or as the New York Times delicately put it: 'Mr. Brownback, who is a vocal opponent of same-sex marriage on religious grounds, declined to comment, and his spokeswoman would not say whether he would support repealing the law against same-sex sodomy, a misdemeanor that officially carries a prison sentence of up to six months.' In other words, homophobia ruled the day.

<https://kansasreflector.com/wp-content/uploads/2021/02/P2231541.jpg> Tom Witt, executive director of Equality Kansas, told KCUR that a Kansas same-sex criminal sodomy law has been used to discriminate against gay people. (Sherman Smith/Kansas Reflector) A decade has passed since then, with the high court legalizing same-sex marriage[5] in 2015. Kansas now has multiple[6], open[7] LGBTQ legislators. Surely now, after all the water passed under the bridge, it's time to show gay Kansans that they belong? Maybe. Maybe not. A recent story[8] from KCUR in Kansas City lays out the current state of affairs. Rep. John Carmichael, D-Wichita, has introduced a simple bill, HB 2009[9], that deletes the phrase I quoted above. It's unfortunately languishing in a committee packed with other important bills. Wrote KCUR's Blaise Mesa: 'The Kansas Bureau of Investigation says nobody has been convicted of same-sex criminal sodomy for at least five years. Still, Thomas Witt, executive director of Equality Kansas, said the provision has been used to discriminate against LGBTQ people even if they weren't convicted. 'Witt said Kansans were arrested for same-sex relations even after the Supreme Court's ruling, but the last time he heard that happened was in 2013.' Can you believe that? No, really, can you believe that? An unenforceable, unconstitutional Kansas law has been deployed to harass your fellow Kansans. Authorities did so as recently as nine years ago, a full decade after Lawrence v. Texas. Repealing this bigoted law can't come soon enough. I decided to check with members of the House Committee on Corrections and Juvenile Justice[10] to see what they thought about the bill. I asked them two questions — first, if they supported Carmichael's bill, and second, if they didn't to explain why. Five members of the 13-member panel responded. Carmichael and Reps. Boog Highberger, D-Lawrence, Annie Kuether, D-Topeka, Dan Osman, D-Overland Park, and John Wheeler, R-Garden City, all support making the change.' ("This Kansas Law Makes Being Gay Illegal. Having previously set and enforced these goals, he understands the Affirmative Action requirements of government contracts and can ensure their full and timely compliance. In his personal time, Osman serves as a Director of the Hickman Mills C-1 school district. In this capacity, he oversees an annual budget of almost $80 million. He also oversees the district's superintendent and staff of 1,000, and safeguards the well being of 6,500+ students.” (Osman Consultants, Accessed 3/28/22)

- Osman: “Not Only Will I Explain What Your Obligations Are Through Every Step Of The Plan, But I Will Work With You, Your General Contractor, And All Its Subcontractors To Make Sure Everyone Understands And Complies With The Obligations Of The TIF Affirmative Action Policy.” “Working with the government is confusing. And that confusion can cost your business. Failure to meet affirmative action requirements on your project may lead to removal (debarment) from the project itself. You could be eliminated from consideration on future opportunities. And get hit with liquidated damages up to the amount of deficiency. In some cases liquidated damages can be 30% of the total contract value! No business can afford that and no one should have to worry about a threat like that derailing their project ... or the embarrassing bad press that comes along with it. Osman Consulting is committed to ensuring that this never happens. Not only will I explain what your obligations are through every step of the plan, but I will work with you, your general contractor, and all its subcontractors to make sure everyone understands and complies with the obligations of the TIF Affirmative Action policy. From the pre-construction phase through closeout, I will be there to ensure everything runs smoothly and all your requirements are met or exceeded.” (Osman Consultants, Accessed 3/28/22)

Osman Criticizing GOP Election Reforms In 2022: “There Are, Unfortunately, Quite A Number Of Bills This Session Targeting Voter Rights.” “There are, unfortunately, quite a number of bills this session targeting voter rights. HB 2585 was a prime example of this. Its short title was "Requiring all advance voting ballots be returned by 7 pm on election day.” (E-Mail, Dan Osman, 2/13/22)

Early Ballot Returns

In February 2022, Osman Touted That He Voted For A Legislative Measure To Kill HB 2585 “Requiring Advance Voting Ballots Be Returned By 7 Pm On Election Day” And Noted “This Bill Was Unnecessary And Harmful To Kansans Who Want A Free And Fair Election.” (Osman Twitter Profile, Posted 2/17/22)

(Osman Twitter Profile, Posted 2/17/22)

Osman Described Killing HB 2585 As A “Great Win.” “Debate on this bill raged on an hour past its scheduled end time. But, in the end, we accomplished our goal: a majority of the committee voted to recommend this bill not be reported favorably out of committee. It effectively killed the bill for the remainder of the session. It's a great win, but the battle isn't over. There's always another election bill around the corner.” (E-Mail, Dan Osman, 2/20/22)

Hostile election bill killed in committee

There are, unfortunately, quite a number of bills this session targeting voter rights. HB 2585 was a prime example of this. Its short title was "Requiring all advance voting ballots be returned by 7 pm on election day."

The current law is that all ballots postmarked by election day will be counted so long as the mail delivers them within three days the election. This makes perfect sense as the election results aren't even certified within the first three days, so the numbers are constantly being updated. HB 2585 says that if the mailed ballot isn't received by close of polls, it no longer would count. This would disenfranchise thousands of Kansans. When the current law was first proposed, 164 out of 165 legislators voted in favor of it. Now, just five years later, Republicans are trying to strip it all away! I wonder what changed in just the last few years...?

Debate on this bill raged on an hour past its scheduled end time. But, in the end, we accomplished our goal: a majority of the committee voted to recommend this bill not be reported favorably out of committee. It effectively killed the bill for the remainder of the session.

It's a great win, but the battle isn't over. There's always another election bill around the corner.

Gerrymandering

In January 2022, Osman Criticized New Legislative Maps As Gerrymandered To The Detriment Of Urban Areas In Kansas. “Rep. Dan Osman, D-Overland Park, said the GOP map will cause irreparable harm to every urban district across the state. 'That is, in my opinion, what it is specifically designed to do,' Osman said. 'It is also, in my opinion, hopelessly, completely gerrymandered. Now, you can waste hundreds of thousands of taxpayer dollars from Kansans only to be shown that in a couple of months in a court of law, or we can scrap the whole thing today and have a legitimate debate on real maps.' Rep. Tom Burroughs, D-Kansas City, said the attempt to water down the voting power of an ethnic community as diverse as Wyandotte County is 'shameful.' 'People of color deserve to have a voice, whether some like it and some don't,' Burroughs said. 'But they deserve to have their voice heard.’” (“Kansas Republican Defends Gerrymandering And Partisan Politics As 'Just Things That Happen,’” Kansas Reflector, 1/26/22)

Special Interests

Osman Pledged To Eliminate Special Interests While Serving On The Hickman Mills School Board. (Osman 4 Hickman, Accessed 3/28/22)

Eliminate Special Interests

When I got on the school board three years ago, I never even considered that this would be a primary concern for our district. Unfortunately, my experiences have taught me otherwise.

If your questions you ask yourself before voting are "how will this benefit me," or "how much money have they contributed to my campaign?" rather than "what's the best choice for the kids and for our district?" you have no place in Hickman Mills.

I have strived to ensure that only qualified teachers, administrators and contractors work for our district. I will continue to do so into my second term.

Appointment

In July 2021, Osman Was Selected To Replace Jennifer Day In The Kansas House. “Local Democrats have selected a 44-year-old Overland Park attorney to fill a vacancy in the Kansas House. Dan Osman will replace former Democratic Rep. Jennifer Day, also from Overland Park, who resigned in June because she was moving outside the district. Democrats selected Osman on Wednesday night. Osman owns a consulting firm that helps developers comply with government affirmative action rules, advises minority- and female-owned businesses and educates fellow attorneys about affirmative action. He also served previously on the Hickman Mills school board on the Missouri side of the Kansas City metropolitan area. He's taking the seat for a district that's been hotly contested in the last two elections. Democrats picked up the seat in 2018, when David Benson won by 82 votes out of more than 10,700 cast. Benson resigned before the 2020 elections; Democrats picked Day to replace him, and she won the seat that November by 62 votes out of 13,800 cast. Terry Frederick, the Republican who narrowly lost to Day, already has filed to run for the seat in 2022.” (The Associated Press, 7/8/21)
